

Medical Assistant

What does a Medical Assistant do?

- Medical assistants perform clinical and administrative duties to keep health care delivery settings running smoothly.
- Medical assistants assist physicians, physician assistants and nurse practitioners during exams and treatments.
- Medical assistants may give injections, take blood for testing, perform simple lab tests and evaluations test including electrocardiography.

What kind of Education would I need?

- High School Diploma or equivalent
- Certificate/diploma or associate degree from community college
- Pass certification board for Medical assistants

Where would I work?

- Physician's offices
- Hospitals
- Nursing Homes

Job Outlook?

Medical assistants are going to be in greater demand because of the healthcare industries expansion and the technological advances in medicine.

Salary?
Medical Assistants
earn an average of $20,600-28,300 per year!

Visit healthcareers.sd.gov
to explore South Dakota Educational Opportunities
in this field.