What does a Nurse Practitioner do?

- Nurse Practitioners take medical history, conduct physical exams, make diagnoses, and implement treatment plans.
- Nurse Practitioners order and interpret lab tests and x-rays as well as write prescriptions.

What kind of education would I need?

- Bachelor’s degree as a Registered Nurse (RN)
- Master’s or Doctorate level Nurse Practitioners program
- After completion of the program one must become nationally certified

Where would I work?

- Hospitals
- Clinics
- Community centers
- Public health department
- Universities

Job Outlook?

Job opportunities for Nurse Practitioners are expected to grow much faster than average through the year 2016.

Site:

Nurse Practitioners earn an average of $74,753 per year!